

Curriculum Vitae

Panos Ligomenidis is a Distinguished Professor Emeritus at the University of Maryland in U.S.A., as well as a Member and former President of the Academy of Athens. He has worked as a researcher at the IBM Company and as Professor at the University of Stanford, the University of Maryland and the Technical University of Madrid. He has served as vice-president of Caelum Research Corporation and as technical advisor of many companies and public organizations. He has gained many distinctions, some of them being Distinguished Professor of Electrical Engineering, Outstanding Educator of America and Ford Foundation Fellow. He has a significant published scientific work.

